POST MORTEM I

7/16/70

Dear Harold,

I'll make notes on errors in the PM's as I come across them. I believe you have some on a pad from my first and second visits. I have one to add, not major in itself, but, if these ever get published, it could be embarrassing.

At page 121 of PM I you say a picture published in WHITEWASH II, page 248 shows where a storm sewer had been eliminated before the SS reconstruction. You locate the area on the picture and assert is has been covered up by a dark patch.

A photo I have taken right after the Shots by Art Rickerby shows this patch. It was not added, as you seem to imply, after the assassination, and is not wide enough to over a storm sewer. It begins about 6 inches from the curb. I wouldn't attach any significance to this at all.

Best,

Howard
